They Knew Him Not

Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took His garments and made four parts, to every soldier a part; and also His coat: now the coat was without seam, woven from the top throughout. They said therefore among themselves, Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be: that the scripture might be fulfilled which saith, They parted my raiment among them, and for my vesture they did cast lots. These things therefore the soldiers did.—St. John 19:23, 24.

White Boy, 16, Shot to Death In Racial Rift

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—A white teen-ager died in a burst of gunfire and a companion was wounded Thursday night in racial violence which has ripped this east Georgia city spasmodically since Monday.

Police said Jack Lutties, 16, was killed as he and two friends cruised through a Negro neighborhood in a car containing an air rifle and a sack of rocks.

Shortly after the shooting, Mayor Millard Beckum made a television appeal for calmness and pledged full police resources to maintain order.

There were numerous arrests during the night, but Police Lt. M. C. Watkins said none were in connection with the shooting. Among those arrested were two Negro men and a Negro woman who were in a car which contained a shotgun. They were booked on a charge of late hours and having a weapon, Watkins said.

Seven white youths and five Negroes were arrested during the night and earlier in the day on various charges, mostly loitering and carrying weapons.

Some of the white youths had been cruising through Negro areas where there had been reports of windows broken by rocks and dented automobile fenders, Watkins said.

In the car with Lutties when he was killed were George Lewis, 15, and Eddie Gay, 16. Lewis was wounded and his condition was reported satisfactory at a hospital.

Negroes began picketing two supermarkets Monday. They said

Indications Seen In Recent Letter

Khrushchev Hardening Policies Toward West

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some highly placed U.S. officials are becoming concerned over signs that Soviet Premier Khrushchev is hardening his policies toward the West and moving back into a closer relationship with Red China.

This concern is still speculative. It arises out of a careful analysis by diplomatic experts during the past week of an intensely personal letter, which seems to reflect indignation and frustration, that Khrushchev sent to British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

The feeling is reinforced by a knowledge that Red China is in difficult economic circumstances, due to the failure of Peiping's Great Leap Forward program. Chinese officials admitted the failure within the past week. This is taken to mean that in addition to reorganizing its development program, China has an urgent need for outside assistance which can only come from Russia and other Communist bloc countries.

As Western leaders see the situation, any intensification of the long-time Soviet-Chinese dispute can be expected to produce Soviet maneuvers for an improvement in relations with the West. Conversely, an accommodation between Peiping and Moscow, which now seems to be in Peiping's temporary interest, may produce a toughening of Soviet policies toward the Allies.

Officials said speculation that Khrushchev is hardening his attitude, however, is so far offset by other evidence that points in a contrary direction.

This evidence is found chiefly in the recent drop in tensions over Berlin and in the continuing friendly approach of the Soviet government to talks with the United States about a Berlin settlement. The first talk of the president

Holy Week Service

Why Peter Followed 'Afar Off' Explained

Kiwanis and Lions Day was observed Thursday at the fourth noon Holy Week service in the First United Presbyterian Church with 178 in attendance.

Rev. Robert Irwin, assistant pastor of the First Methodist Church, presided.

"Following Afar Off," was the theme of the sermon delivered by Rev. James E. Hutton, pastor of the East Liverpool Church of the Nazarene.

He spoke of the reasons Peter followed "afar off" when Christ was led away. Peter was self-sufficient, and a person cannot be a Christian if he does not feel a need of outside help, the speaker said.

Peter had failed to pray and he followed at a distance because he was fearful, he declared.

The Rev. Hutton expressed the hope that the purpose of these noon services would be fulfilled and through them people would become more like Christ.

Today's Good Friday service, held at the First Methodist Church concluded the series of Holy Week noon services.

Rev. William Longworth, pastor, and Rev. Arthur Browne, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, presided.

Rev. Hutton delivered the sermon.

Kent State University has accepted an invitation from the Salem Board of Education to establish an extension center here. The Salem center will open in September with a program of accredited college courses.

Kent will use the facilities of Salem Senior High School to conduct its classes at night. Paul E. Smith, superintendent of Salem schools, says the extension center will be established here without cost to the Salem Board of Education, except for providing classroom facilities, heating, lighting and custodial service.

Regular KSU Courses

Courses offered in the Salem Center will be regular Kent State University courses. Credit earned in the Salem Center will be identical to that received for courses taken at the main campus in Kent.

Classes will be conducted here throughout the year, four or five evenings per week. Instructors for all courses offered in the Salem Center will be regular or part-time Kent State University faculty members.

All residents of Ohio who have completed high school and who are qualified for admission to Kent State University for the fall term, 1962, are eligible to register for courses in the Salem center. Persons with college work from other accredited institutions may transfer to the Salem center if they are in good standing at the last college or university attended.

Two-Year College Program

Initially, the Salem Center will offer a two-year college program centered in general studies. Basic courses in English, history, physical science, mathematics, art, business education, a foreign language and speech will be included in the fall quarter 1962, program of studies as demand indicates.

A majority of the courses will apply to a baccalaureate degree in the colleges of Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Education, and Fine and Professional Arts of Kent State University.

Courses in other fields will be included in the program in September if sufficient interest is demonstrated. There is no required registration load. A student may register for one or more courses as he prefers, dependent upon conditions of work and other factors applicable to his situation.

Class Requirement Cited

Class attendance two evenings per week is usually required of all extension students. By attending evenings between the hours of 6 and 10 p.m., two evenings per week, a student can carry eight or nine quarters hours of course work each quarter. A full campus load is usually 16 hours of work per quarter.

By attending four evenings per week, a student can carry 14 to 16 hours of course work each quarter. It is possible for evening students to complete two full years of college work in two years by attending four evenings per week as well as summer terms.

Registration in the Salem Extension Center will be held be-

Republicans Rip JFK's Tactics

Claim Steel Firms Were 'Blackjacked'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican congressional leaders have unloaded some of their sharpest criticism of President Kennedy since he took office, claiming he used police state methods to "blackjack" steel companies into rescinding a price increase.

In a formal statement released Thursday, they charged Kennedy with ordering or supporting nine actions last week that "imperiled basic American rights, went far beyond the law, and were more characteristic of a police state than a free government."

These "punitive, heavy handed and frightening" actions amounted to "a display of naked political power never before seen in this nation," said the statement issued on behalf of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, House GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and other GOP leaders in Congress.

It drew a quick reply from the Senate's assistant Democratic leader, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota. He said the GOP leaders had again shown "an inborn, uncanny ability to get on the wrong side of major issues."

Eight companies announced $6-a-ton price increases last week but later backed down in the face of strong opposition from the President, who said such increases were not in the public interest.

The Republican statement said "We condone nothing in the actions of the steel companies except their right to make an economic judgement without massive retaliation by the federal government."

"Temporarily President Kennedy may have won a political

Christ Arose, Leaving An Empty Tomb

EDITOR'S NOTE—"He is not here, He is risen"—so came the angel's message, referring to the Holy Sepulchre in Jerusalem. Visiting the traditional, hallowed site holds a special meaning to the Christian. This is the last of five articles on the shrines in the Holy Land.

(PART 5)

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

Associated Press Religion Writer
JERUSALEM, Jordan — It's strange, how minor things become more dear with passing years. A piece of lace. A faded letter. Dog-eared book. A song. A lock of hair. A place.

That's how it is with Christians, seeking out the old mementos of their Lord's self-offering to men—the hill, the place He died, the tomb He occupied until... until that cataclysmic dawn that never dimmed.

...they found the stone was rolled away.

Believers of the early period weren't particularly concerned with sites, terrain or objects. Apostolic records don't detail exact locations or accoutrements. All that was overshadowed by the unsurpassed event itself. This still is so.

AND YET, with passing years, the ground and relics linked with Jesus' sojourn on the earth, like cherished keepsakes tucked away in some old battered trunk, have come to be a precious memory chest of Him.

Especially that tomb, the tomb that couldn't hold Him in. "He is not here..."

Today, through long tradition or investigation, two locales are singled out as likely settings of that mystifying day. My wife and I paid visits to them both. And each evokes its special essences of Easter.

One of them was found through late research—a garden-bordered tomb beside a skull-shaped hill 200 yards beyond the city's northern wall, outside the main Damascus gate. Gentle silences are there, an air of hushed and gracious wonder.

The other, first located in 326 A.D. by Empress Helena, the mother of the Roman ruler Constantine, and hallowed by 1,630 years of church tradition, lies ensconced within the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, inside the city.

The church is laden with compelling, somber mystery.

That element pervades the semi-dark and winding halls, the chambers, niches, chapels, vaults and stairs. It moves in swaying flares of lamps and candlelight. It waits on heady waves of incense, curling wraith-like up the banisters. It shows in ancient altars, icons, art in bas-relief. It vibrates, tinglingly, in surging hymns that seem to come from everywhere.

SOLEMNITY, of awesome power, fills that intricate and dimly lit sanctuary.

You speak in muffled tones while there, despite the constant movement all around, the monks, the muted patter of the guides, the pilgrims, kneeling figures, shifting shadow-like about within the many-roomed interior, whippers threading through the strains of singing male choirs.

You hold a burning taper in your hand to find your way. ...they came unto the sepulchre bringing spices which they had prepared, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus..."

A Moslem keeps the door, a task inherited along ancestral lines since Saladin bestowed the right eight centuries ago. Inside, the sundry shrines are held by four of ancient Eastern Orthodoxy's patriarchates and the Church of Rome, in separate jurisdictions.

Orthodoxy keeps the sepulchre itself, enclosed with a thick-walled block of altar cells, situated at the center of the main rotunda. The tomb is covered with a marble slab. You stoop beneath a squatting arch and edge along a narrow space to reach the hallowed spot.

A nun and little native boy were praying there. By accident, in those confining quarters, tall from my candle dripped upon the sister's folded hands. I murmured an apology. She never stirred, or seemed to notice, so absorbed was she in her devotions.

The little boy raised his eyes and smiled and stole away to

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE—This man now approached Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Taking it down from the cross, he wrapped it in a linen sheet, and laid it in a tomb cut out of the rock, in which no one had been laid before. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre has been venerated as the site of Jesus' crucifixion and burial for 1,630 years.

make more room. We met him later on a darkened balcony. My wife and he talked softly. Said she, "I'm Episcopalian." He gestured at the many varied pilgrims passing by like nameless spectres. "All are same," he said.

Elsewhere, up and down and through that vast and honey-combed domain, are pillars, soaring, decorative altars, passages and cubicles, with glimmerings of candlelight to mark the sacred spots and chapels—one to Mary, one where soldiers gambled for the clothes of Jesus, one where angels waited with the resurrection news, one to Longinus, the Roman officer who supervised the crucifixion, who, as stormy forces rent the earth and hid the sun, declared:

"TRULY THIS MAN was the Son of God."

From dark and subterranean galleries, a flight of stairs leads upward to a large and pillared chamber, cited as the place of crucifixion—Calvary, Golgotha (Greek and Hebrew words, respectively, that mean the Place of the Skull).

On the wide and grayish floor, shared by churches of the east and west, are altars designating spots where soldiers fastened Jesus to the cross, where they parceled out His garments. Marble slabs, with notches, show the places where the crosses stood. "Father," Jesus pleaded as He died, "forgive them, for they know not what they do."

We stood there, pondering, a while. From down below arose the throbbing, mournful chant of monks in candlelit procession, their voices a deep-toned roll of sorrow, sin and death. But from another chamber swelled the tender anthems of a boys' chorus, lofty, sweet, exalted tones of victory.

Rising, falling, near and far, blending, fusing like the point and counterpoint of some unearthly, strange antiphony, the music carried the dual messages of Easter time. As we left, the children's voices mounted higher, spiraling, ecstatically, winging legions climbing toward the spheres of heaven.

AFTER THIS, we thought the tomb outside the walls might be anti-climax. Just the opposite was true. Here, in pure and simple authenticity, without the churchly trappings, comes another sort of overwhelming impact. I exclaimed: "This must have been the way it was."

This rock-hewn tomb "without the gate." This leafy-bowered garden spot. This skull-faced execution hill adjoining. It all conforms to Scriptural descriptions, British scholars drew attention to the spot about a hundred years ago, and certain findings since have tended to support it.

Aside from all the technicalities, however, whether here or elsewhere marks the actual site, this "garden tomb" reflects the natural features of the story. No buildings, monuments or other fixtures mar the scene. The interchurch group overseeing it has set a policy of keeping its original appearance. No lighting, but the sun and stars. No music, but the birds and insects. No perfumed aromas, but the scent of cedar, pepper berry shrubs and purple-blooming rosemary.

Beneath the entrance of the tomb, a long, wide groove provides a rolling track to hold the massive sealing stone in place. Nearby lies a broken chunk of it. Within the tomb, along one side, a six-foot limestone graveslab shows the greenish colorings of age. Here, presumably, He lay.

"...THE ANGEL SAID... He is not here: for He is risen."

Two other graveslabs there were never finished. The record says it was a new-cut private tomb, not used before, provided by Joseph of Arimathea.

Beside the garden tomb, the bulge of limestone hill presents an ugly visage—odd formations in the rock resembling twin eye sockets, corrugated brow and facial bones of an enormous skull.

When it happened long ago, the followers of Jesus weren't inclined to venerate a spot where blood of countless criminals was spilled.

But with the mellowings of centuries, the faithful now find poignant retrospect in going back to where it all began. Events and acts remain the chief affair, but even these are known the more by treasuring their earthly frame.

Standing in this garden of a grave, amid its flowers, shrubs and overhanging branches, seeing through the leaves the gaping tomb, you sense once more the moment Mary Magdalene was here, and recognized His footprints, saw His face and heard Him call her name.

"Mary."

"Touch me not... but go to my brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God, and your God."

The hill, in Jewish lore, from ancient times until today, has been regarded as a place of execution. Romans may have held their crucifixions there.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Hollywood's most eligible bachelor girl says her state of single bliss has only one big problem.

"It's the people who keep asking me why I haven't married," said Kim Novak, the world's most lovely lavender blonde.

"They accept singleness in a man but in the case of a woman look for some strange reason.

"In my case it's quite simple. I haven't married—by choice.

"I've met a lot of men in my life, and I expect to meet a lot more, but I haven't met an overwhelming one."

She isn't presently in the mood to be overwhelmed by anything or anybody. In the wake of a most meteoric rise to fame, she is still engaged in that struggle that comes to all who are new to renown—the struggle to retain one's own identity as a human being.

Just a few years ago she was an obscure model. Today she's a top star, has her own film company, two homes, and presumably enough in the bank to tide her over a long lifetime of rainy days.

Such being the situation, she is in a good position to fight against being destroyed by the whipsaw strains of success. She doesn't want to be possessed or dominated by other.

That is why she vigorously resents pressures on her to marry. "Above all I prize being an individual," she remarked. "People are always trying to change you. I don't feel we have the right to destroy our lives by wrong compromises, by settling for less than we believe in. But you can hold on to yourself—if you just do."

While stardom has cost her much in terms of lost privacy, she said frankly that the money that goes with it has given her more freedom to stay herself.

"But it does get on my nerves—this constant questioning about about why I don't marry," she said.

"Being single has certain advantages. Everything is simpler and less complicated.

"I've always been a loner. I adore privacy and being alone.

"The things I like most in life—painting and writing—are the kind of things you don't do with someone looking over your shoulder.

"I'm far happier than if I were married to the wrong person—or even a half-way wrong person. I don't want to get married just because it's the thing to do."

She believes happiness in marriage is relatively rare because marital partners too often try to change each other.

"Stupid marriages—and the frustrations resulting from them have much to do with juvenile crime, war—all the restlessness in the world."

So she intends to remain single until that overwhelming man—with all his imperfections—comes along to bring her happiness.

The Weak Link In Government

Reviewing his thoughts on the Republican party, present and future, for readers of the Saturday Evening Post, former President Eisenhower supported GOP opposition to the Kennedy administration's proposal to establish a cabinet-rank Department of Urban Affairs.

He said it would upset the traditional relationships between federal and state governments and between state and local governments.

But, he continued, mere opposition to the Kennedy proposal is not enough if the Republican party truly is interested in preserving those traditional relationships and in meeting the problems of an increasingly urban society. More action on the state and local levels to meet those problems is imperative.

THE ADVICE is timely and pertinent.

As was pointed out by several writers at the time the proposal for a new department was made, states righters who objected to the idea zealously usually lack equal zeal in pushing for full use of the states rights they want to safeguard.

But the problem reaches into the grass roots. In few states do citizens concern themselves with the makeup or the work of their legislatures with the same intensity they devote to their city councils or their federal government.

If there is a weak link in the federal-state-local chain of activity, it is the one in the middle. The strengthening of that link probably would do more to slow the encroachment of federal power and speed the solution of urban society's problems than any other single approach.

How to do it?

More and more states have switched in recent years from biennial to annual sessions and the trend should continue. This not only permits more intensive study of and action on all the concerns of state and local governments; it also recognizes the fact that state legislatures have duties to perform as important as those of Congress, which now sits almost year-around, and city councils, which usually meet every week or two.

Some states have raised the salaries of their legislators. The value of this in upgrading the quality of legislatures is open to debate; the debate, in fact, has been going on at all levels of government since the founding of the republic.

MR. EISENHOWER addressed himself specifically to the Republican party, but both parties can contribute to the focusing of attention on state legislatures by more diligently seeking sincere, qualified candidates and by more deliberately emphasizing the role legislative offices can play in building experience for careers in public service.

And the voters themselves should take a deeper interest in their legislatures. The people who serve in them, the work they do, the problems they face should command as much attention as any other agency of government at any level. But seldom do they.

The recent controversy over fair representation in state legislatures has focused attention on the problem. But that is only one phase of the role legislatures can and should play in the future.

The renewed interest in legislatures can serve as the opening phase in a concentrated effort to upgrade the quality and the importance of the weak link in governmental relationships.

Control In the Market Place

Reaction to last week's price war between President Kennedy and Big Steel continues to focus attention on the awesome use of administrative power to drive businessmen to rout.

Republican Sen. Margaret Chase Smith declared she could applaud the results the President obtained but could not condone his tactics.

Retiring Sears, Roebuck & Co. Board Chairman Charles H. Kellstadt said it "probably" was fortunate the price increase was rescinded but questioned the desirability of setting a precedent that could lead to political control over a lot more things than steel prices.

THESE ARE arguments, in effect, that the end may have been desirable but the means used did not justify it.

Mr. Kennedy himself, having tested to his satisfaction the power his office could exert in the specific situation, has backed away and declared his actions of last week should not be interpreted as an indication of general ill will toward business and industry.

Question of the Hour

Salem post office operations are expected to be situated in spanking new quarters a week after the new post office building is dedicated May 13.

This will leave the present brick structure empty at the corner of State and Lincoln where it has stood for nearly a half century. The building across the street also is empty.

This corner was once one of the city's busiest intersections but imposed traffic restrictions have brought about a change. Inactivity on a principal downtown corner is not good and local civic leaders ought to be challenged into action to remedy the situation. Renting the storeroom cross the street is pretty much a personal problem but the future of the old post office or the use of the site is almost a community responsibility.

The question of the hour seems to be, "Who, besides the Salem Board of Education, wants the old post office building?"

Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

General Electric announces a home and fireside computer which checks bills, balances checkbooks and does all calculations formerly done through human head, patience and poor arithmetic. Company official says computer will help prepare meals.

Question: In case of mechanical failure won't there be danger of pressing button to balance books and getting unbalanced beef-stew? Or looking for a fast dinner and obtaining a medium-done report on financial situation, with mashed potatoes?

If work-saving trend keeps up, home sweet home can be operated without any personal responsibilities. Dad can walk the baby by automation, mother can change diapers by pushbutton, kids can do homework by electronics.

Ultimately it may be possible to court a girl by radio, be married by pushbutton, raise children by dials, be buried through electric brain and go to the Great Beyond supervised by General Electric, Westinghouse or International Business Machines.

Life can be just a bowl of buttons. It will not amaze us if new home computer, which will come in console or table model, will permit a choice of color and provide hi-fi music. Engineers are pretty certain to add gadgets that will separate bills requiring fast payment from bills that can wait without lawsuit.

Possibility that machine will also choose an attorney for you in case of legal action, give estimate of his fee and flash name of alternate counsel in case you want cheaper legal aid.

(We want computer providing all these energy-saving advantages and also flash neon lights, fire pistol and wave American flag whenever we balance books and find we are 10 cents in the black.)

"Let's Have Another Look at the Road Map!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

The heat's on hundreds of tough operators of personally owned "charter-it-yourself" unions.

Special agents of the FBI and the Labor Department's Enforcement Division are not talking, but are probing plenty. They've run into a multi-million dollar business in do-it-yourself unionism which, has wildfired from the East Coast right into California.

Confidentially they'll tell you that they've found there's no law to prevent even the toughest buddies of the most notorious mobsters from printing a charter, unionizing 10 or 20 shops and operating as union officials. Operating — in fact — under the protection of the law.

The best estimate now is that 1,000 such union businesses exist — many of them have become charter mills, selling the parchment to any hood looking for a small time business.

I've been on this since the strange case of one Anthony J. Doria flashed into and out of the news some weeks ago.

Doria is a chunky, rather literate chap, who has been the buddy of convicts, ex-cons and much "muscle."

During the '50s, which some people tell me were fabulous, he was the intimate of an extortionist called Johnny Dio, now doing time on an income tax rap.

DORIA THEN was international secretary-treasurer of the United Automobile Workers (AFL) which was no relation to the union over in Detroit.

Among his colleagues was one Angelo Inciso — the head of the union's biggest and wealthiest local. The latter's dedication was to stealing money and buying $1,000 diamond rings with some of the loot. Union money, that is.

We in the public prints made much of this kind of unionism. Doria quit. The union cleaned itself up. Its name was changed to the Allied Industrial Workers (AFL-CIO).

This left Doria at loose ends. Dio was on his way to the federal pen in Atlanta. Inciso has since been sentenced to a 20-year term for embezzlement.

Most recently Inciso was questioned in the investigation of the murder of a Chicago labor leader.

Doria then left his haunts in Milwaukee and Chicago and went West. In 1957 he said he was "presently involved in the development of mining properties in Arizona." He gave his address then in Encino, Calif. Being a knowledgeable type he had decided to diversify. So he also went into the labor business.

SOON HE WAS a "consultant" to something called the Industrial Workers Federation of Labor, Local 886. No one seems to know what happened to the other 885 locals. Nor did anyone seem to be able to trace just who had federated with this outfit. But, under his guidance, it picked up some 10 shops.

Then, with what must be a quixotic touch, the Doria outfit moved in on a plastics plant in Los Angeles which was under contract to the Allied Industrial Workers of America (AFL-CIO)— the outfit from which he had run under fire.

The allied leaders did what comes naturally. They went to the National Labor Relations Board. They pointed to Doria's record. They charged that the Industrial Workers Federation of Labor "is a 'paper union' . . . and that it is not a labor organization within the meaning of the (National Labor Relations) act."

The National Labor Relations Board then ruled it could do nothing to stop Doria, or his type of unionism.

STARTLINGLY enough, the board said it merely provided the machinery through which "the employees may select a 'good' labor organization, a 'bad' labor organization, or no labor organization, it being presupposed that employees will intelligently exercise their right to select" their union.

If we lived in a fairyland of goodness, fine. But what of a system in which Doria can be a "union" chief — the same Doria who told the McClellan committee that he would take the word of Johnny Dio before the word of George Meany, Walter Reuther, Dave Dubinsky and Al Hayes. This was said under oath by Mr. Doria.

Seems to me it's a mighty cockeyed labor law which makes all this possible. Somebody should write a new one.

There are now some 3,000 unaffiliated unions, with a membership of about two million. Most of these are legitimate. At least let's have a federal probe to learn which are not. Let's not have the government protect the toughs who make a business of unionism.

Forgiveness Nullified

By DAVID LAWRENCE

JFK Tried to 'Butter Up' American Business

President Kennedy tried in his Wednesday press conference to "butter up" American business, including the steel companies. He no ill will toward anybody and that there was no room on either side for "any feelings of hostility or vindictiveness."

Unfortunately, the David Lawrence President nullified much of what he said when he refused to answer a reporter's question as to how he would treat labor unions if they do the same thing the steel companies did — namely, if they make demands for wage increase that go beyond the administration's formula for a "hold the line" or stabilization program.

The reporter's question was as follows:

"Assuming that a price increase in steel would eventually be necessary and justified, do you have any thoughts as to how this price increase should be reached? Secondly, if some major labor union made excessive demands for wage increases, would you move as sharply against that union as you did last week against steel?"

The exact record of what the President said in reply was as follows:

"Well, to take the second part first, we had worked very closely with the steel union in an attempt to persuade them that it was in their interest and the country's interest to meet the standards set by the council of economic advisers, and it was done. And that is why this matter came into particularly sharp focus last week."

Mr. Kennedy's avoidance of an answer is regarded as particularly significant, because it means that the administration intends to continue to put pressure on business and threaten it with lawsuits and the withdrawal of orders by the Defense Department, but will exercise no analogous pressure on the labor unions.

Mr. Kennedy pleaded that he doesn't really have the "power" to restrain wage increases. Actually, he has no legal power to restrain price rises either.

Mr. Kennedy seemed to sidestep the point made by one of the reporters that, by holding the line, he was actually fixing prices. The reporter said: "Some of your critics feel that you set prices, or have gone into the field of price control by executive fiat in the steel situation, and further that this sets a precedent which you would have to follow in future situations. Do you feel that you have set a precedent — that, as these situations arise, you would again have to invoke this sort of power?"

MR. KENNEDY argued that "everyone is quite aware of what the powers are of the government, and the limitation on those powers." He then added:

"But I have not suggested that — our power — that we have powers to set, or that those powers would be desirable, to set prices or to set wages."

The President insisted that he had merely attempted to put before the parties on both sides the importance of the public interest, and he did say that the interrelationship of various factors makes the public interest "mandatory" in these matters. He put it this way:

"Public interest is very definitely involved, but in asserting the public interest we have always recognized the proper limitations of that — of the power of the government to enforce any collective bargaining agreement. We do not have that power. That power has not been given to us."

Mr. Kennedy nevertheless did not hesitate last week to use all the pressure and power of the United States government to force the steel companies to recede from their announcement of a price increase. There is no power to do this under the law, but he applied it nevertheless.

The Defense Department withheld orders promptly an ignored the principle of competitive bids by simply shifting contracts without requiring formal submission. Coincidentally, a federal grand jury investigation of certain steel companies was ordered.

Mr. Kennedy's remarks were particularly unsettling, however, when he discussed future profits and productivity. He gave the impression that shareholders should be content with a record of high returns on their investment during the last 10 years. He said nothing about the current situation, in which the value of the stock held by U.S. Steel shareholders is approximately $63, compared to $108 two years ago.

MR. KENNEDY also seems to think that the steel industry would get a $500 million increase in profits when steel production goes up to 85 or 90 per cent of capacity. Nobody in the steel business expects any such result as this for a long time to come.

In fact, the realistic experts among them say that what's important isn't the total amount of profits, but the return per shareholder. They also say that a better way to measure progress is by the rate of return on sales which the steel companies receive.

The industry figures show that in the last four or five years these percentages have been steadily going downhill.

A newsworthy piece of information in the President's press conference was his admission that at no time during the administration's discussion with the steel companies, before the decision was reached to raise prices, was there any assurance given that there would or would not be a price increase.

One of the reporters had asked whether such assurances were given that there would or would not be a price increase.

One of the reporters had asked whether such assurances were given, either directly or indirectly, because the day the contract was ratified the President had stated that the settlement was "non-inflationary." Mr. Kennedy replied finally that they "were not asked and they were not given."

The foregoing is an example of what American business is up against. The President himself hasn't revealed clearly just what happened in his attempts to get a "non-inflationary" settlement or the kind of pressure he used in coercing the steel companies to withdraw their price increase.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

Convulsion Treatment For 'Blues'

Q—My wife has just had a nervous breakdown. She used to be full of pep. Took care of everything and everybody. Then she began to run down. Let things go. Didn't want to be bothered by the house or the children or herself.

I took her to our doctor who knows her since she was a little girl. He said she was having the "change." He gave her all kinds of pills and shots. But nothing helped.

So he sent me to a nerve specialist. And the nerve specialist says she needs convulsion treatments and asked me to sign a paper to give permission. I wouldn't sign such a paper so I took her back home. How can fits help my wife? I am not an educated man but I don't think what the doctor advises makes sense. Do you?

A—I don't blame you for being confused, my friend. It's true that convulsion treatment doesn't make sense. But it's also true that it often works wonders in the treatment of certain kinds of "nervous breakdown," especially the kind your wife seems to be suffering from. That is to say, a deep depression.

Although these depressions often occur in middle age, they have nothing to do with the "change," as you've already found out.

Men get them as well as women. But if a woman gets them, say in her early forties, they say it's because she's about to have her "change." And if she gets them after the fifties, they are apt to say it's because she just had her "change."

The "change" has little, if anything, to do with the depression. And pills and shots of vitamins and pep-up drugs do little good, if any. Those persons who think they are benefited probably would have gotten better anyway as, most often, these attacks of the "blues" lift just like storm clouds.

When they don't lift, as in the case of your wife, convulsion treatment may cause them to lift. But don't ask why. Because no one knows.

When convulsions are produced by carefully controlled electric shocks, there is very little risk and great promise for good.

Your doctor asked you to sign consent to these treatments for the same reason you'd be asked to sign consent to operation. Because, every once in a while, the induced convulsion results in dislocation of a shoulder or a back injury.

But 99 times out of 100 or more, the convulsion causes no damage.

From your description of your wife, I am inclined to believe she would want you to sign the paper. A woman who formerly "took care of everything and everybody" can't be very happy being a burden and a problem to her husband and children.

They Walked With Christ

THE GOOD THIEF

"And he said unto Jesus, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

—Luke XXIII:42

Two hardened criminals are paying the ultimate price for their careers of lawlessness—nailed to the cross.

Between them on a third cross hangs the Gentle Shepherd of men's lives, "numbered among the transgressors" because He came into the world to bear witness to the Truth.

Even during the throes of his own final agony, one of the thieves reflects the mockery and scorn of the crowd. Twisting his head toward Jesus, he echoes the derision of the soldiers:

"If thou be the Christ, save thyself and us."

But his companion, who had listened in astonishment as the Man on the cross between them had said, "Father forgive them; for they know not what they do," now felt a new response and love for the Nazarene flood his whole being. He found within himself an awakening which cleared his thoughts to a change of perspective.

And that change of perspective called into expression a discerning and elevated consciousness. Enlightenment thus developed the thoughts of this dying malefactor until the negative impression of his first reaction to Jesus was changed to a true understanding.

Forgetting his own agony, he turned upon his fellow thief.

"Dost thou not fear God," he said, "seeing thou art in the same condemnation? And we justly; for we receive the due reward for our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiss."

Perhaps in that terrible moment of suffering, mixed with pity for the innocent Man who suffered so great an injustice and the profound recognition of that Man's identity, the Good Thief sensed the coming Resurrection, for he cried:

"Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom."

And Jesus, who was to know, even in the darkest hour of man's rejection, man's trust and man's faith, answered:

"Verily, I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in paradise."

A Cross Marks the Day

Peoples Throughout the World Redevote Their Lives to God

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A cross marks the day.

It was a large, sturdy cross, made of wood, on which a man was hung on another Friday 2,000 years ago until he was dead.

Today, Christians around the earth commemorate that event in awe and penitence.

This is Good Friday, the observance of an interlude in history which to believers disclosed the ultimate devotion of God to errant human beings.

To Christians, their Lord suffered—because of and for their own sinfulness—even to death. "Greater love has no man than this," the old account reads, "than he lay down his life for his friends."

It is a somber, yet strangely magnanimous occasion, the great offering, the sublime sacrifice on man's behalf. Affairs are bare. Vestments are dark. And heads bow low in meditation.

The victim was Jesus, whom Christians regard as the man by whom divinity came directly to the world out of concern for it.

He was considered a heretic by the religious leaders of the day. The government found him dangerous, and condemned Him. He was marched to the "place of the skull" outside Jerusalem and hung.

Various kinds of crosses symbolize the event.

At the time it occurred, three types of crosses were used for crucifixions by the Romans. It was the crudest form of execution known, reserved for criminal slaves and insurrectionists.

The crosses were sometimes shaped like a capital X, what is now called the St. Andrew's Cross. Sometimes a straight-topped cross was used, shaped like a capital T, without the tip flanges.

But the third sort of cross in use, the presently termed Latin Cross with the overlapping vertical and horizontal sections, apparently was the type on which Jesus died.

Scripture mentions a sign placed above His head, and early Christian writers speak of the four extremities of the cross, thus indicating the so-called Latin Cross.

According to early documents, the upright stake was fixed in the ground at the place of execution. So it is likely the condemned man carried only the crossbeam on the way to his death.

This was the usual practice, contrary to later Christian art showing Jesus carrying the entire cross. At the site of execution, His arms were strapped to the crossbeam and His hands nailed to it.

Then the crossbeam was raised to the upright by pulleys, and strapped into a notch. The victim was put astride a peg extending from the upright, and his feet nailed down.

In this position, modern studies have shown, the weight of the body transfixes the rib cage, so that breathing is possible only by muscles of the diaphragm.

Death comes slowly from exhaustion, cramps and paralyzing tension.

Before it came, He said, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." Somehow, in the torment of those hours, Christians believe this faultless, just man, this son of God took on himself the burden of man's injustice—for man's sake.

Grace—the divine clemency—was bestowed.

In the midst of it, long ago, the sky darkened, the wind rose, and the earth shuddered, the record says, and men were afraid at their doings. "It is finished," Jesus said. Then He shouted with a loud voice, and His head sagged.

He was dead. A soldier ran Him through with a spear.

As His broken-hearted followers carried Him to a tomb, the officer in charge of the execution murmured, "Surely this man was the son of God."

Bowman Resigns As Head At Kent State

KENT, Ohio (AP)—Dr. George A. Bowman, who has seen Kent State University's enrollment grow from 891 to 13,000 under his presidency, has announced he will retire next year.

Dr. Bowman told Kent trustees Thursday to start looking immediately for a successor. A battler the past year against the Ohio Legislature for cutting allocation of funds to the university, Dr. Bowman often made speeches aimed at keeping student fees as low as possible.

Retirement is automatic on a president's 70th birthday, which in Dr. Bowman's case is May 11, 1963. He urged the directors not to continue his contract on a year-to-year basis.

Kent State covered 100 acres when Dr. Bowman became president in 1944. With the approval Thursday of the $169,000 purchase of 85 acres adjoining the south eastern border of the campus, the acreage increased to 556.

A building program started by Dr. Bowman has produced $32 million in capital improvements on the campus.

A 1917 graduate of Western Reserve University's Adelbert College, Dr. Bowman was a teacher, coach, athletic director and principal at Zanesville. He later became school superintendent in Chillicothe, Marion, Lakewood and Youngstown.

He was also fined $10 for permitting his dog to run at large and $10 (suspended) for failure to have the animal's license attached to its collar.

A charge of assault filed against Reynolds by his wife was continued by Judge Arfman until next Thursday after Mrs. Reynolds failed to appear yesterday.

No person appeared against the vacation of streets and alleys in St. Clair and Liverpool townships, which was set for Thursday afternoon, and the commissioners agreed to vacate the streets and department's use on construction, repair of new Route 30 in that area.

The Burns and Son Coal Co. of East Palestine posted a $10,000 certified check with commissioner so that they could take their drag line across County Road 421.

The commissioners will meet again Monday.

Only two of the water samples tested the previous week were found free of the bugs which were not considered a health hazard. Mayor Harding said the use of chlorine will continue for the time being.

spokesman said Guido had asked that it be postponed until later in the day because he was suffering from the flu and fatigue brought on by two virtually sleepless nights of crisis conferences.

The armed forces chiefs are demanding that Guido issue presidential decrees to (1) Ban political activity by Peronists and other elements the military considers subversive, (2) Nullify the March 18 election results in which the Peronists scored sweeping victories (3) End the current emergency session of Congress and (4) Call new elections for president and vice president.

Backed by the Communists—who already are banned from political activity—the Peronists polled more than 2.5 million votes and won nine provincial governorships and 43 congressional seats in the March 18 elections. They have threatened violence unless they are allowed to take office on schedule May 1.

The military is determined that they will not take office and has stepped up security measures during the past few days. Troops moved into Buenos Aires and nearby industrial centers, and reinforcements—including a regiment of marines—are due in the capital before May 1.

National policemen staged a series of raids in Buenos Aires and other key cities Thursday and arrested 156 persons described as Communists and their allies. The police said they seized great quantities of propaganda and arms.

Massillon Plant Will Shut Down

MASSILLON, Ohio (AP)—Mayor William J. Keen is a man on the spot in the wake of the announcement that the 50-year-old Griscorn-Russell Co. is closing its plant here by July 31 and transferring operations to Eddystone, Pa.

Five hundred employees are affected—including Mayor Keen.

The move was announced Thursday by William S. Ginn, president of the Baldwin-Lima - Hamilton Corp., which acquired Griscorn-Russell as a subsidiary in January.

Mayor Keen is concerned with the general welfare and financial problems of the city caused by the loss of its second-largest industry. The mayor, on leave of absence from Griscorn-Russell, is still working at the plant part time as personnel director. So he is directly concerned with the problems of each employee.

He also must decide if he will stay with the company and move to Eddystone, a Philadelphia suburb, or stay here as mayor.

The mayor said the company's $5-million payroll provides Massillon with $30,000 a year in income taxes.

Griscorn-Russell was purchased by Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton from the Hamilton-Thomas Co. of Hamilton. Hamilton-Thomas had acquired control in January 1960 from General Precision Corp., the owner from 1955-60. The company makes heat exchangers for ships, power stations and refining plants, some nuclear products and other heavy industrial equipment.

The company said it will establish an employment office for those workers who are not transferred to Eddystone or any who do not want to move.

Teamwork between the East Liverpool police department and Sheriff Russell VanFossan's office has led to arrest of two East Liverpool men for a $1,000 East Liverpool scrap yard burglary in March, with one of the pair and another East Liverpool man charged with entering the DAV Home at West Point Sunday.

NOT A GAME

EVEN THE GAMES that Russian children play take on political meaning. Sports programs at special schools in Russia are training children to become athletic champions to bring glory to their homeland. Here are typical scenes.

Leafs Ahead In Title Series

Take 3-2 Edge With Victory Over Hawks

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer
TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Maple Leafs might be accused of being a bunch of "homers" but it's all right with them as long as they can win their first Stanley Cup in 11 years.

"I don't mind a bit about being called the best homers in the league," shouted assistant coach King Clancy after the Leafs' 8-4 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks Thursday night. "Not a bit, so long as we win this thing."

And the way things have been going, it appears that's exactly how it will end. The Leafs took a 3-2 edge in the best-of-seven series in which the home team has yet to lose.

The scene shifts to Chicago Sunday for game No. 6 and if a seventh game is necessary it will be played in Toronto Tuesday. The Leafs have the home edge because of their second place finish in the National Hockey League, one notch above the Hawks.

Bobby Pulford, who scored the first hat trick of the series, put Toronto into a 2-0 lead in the first period Thursday night. Murray Balfour's goal made it 2-1 at the end of the session and the Hawks went ahead early in the second period on a pair of goals by Ab McDonald within four minutes of play.

However, goals by Billy Harris, Dave Keon and Frank Mahovlich gave Toronto a 5-3 lead after the second period. George Armstrong, Mahovlich and Pulford scored for Toronto in the final frame and Bob Turner pumped in Chicago's last goal while the Hawks were short a man.

Bums' Hurling, Power Too Much for Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — Whenever the Los Angeles Dodgers combine their power with good pitching, the opposition is in trouble.

This happened Thursday night as the Dodgers snapped the Cincinnati Reds' modest three-game winning streak before a chilled 4,071 fans. The score was 4-3.

Unbeaten Bears Dominate 10 of 13 Events

Unbeaten Leetonia High, sporting one of its finest track squads in many years, rolled to its third straight dual meet victory of the season Thursday by thumping the visiting Greenford Bobcats, 76-33.

The Bears were led once again by their much-improved junior, Paul Conrad, who copped his specialties, the 100-yard dash in 10.9 and the 180-yard low hurdles in the good time of 22.3.

Conrad became a triple winner last night when he anchored Leetonia's winning half-mile relay team to victory in 1:41.9.

IN COPPING the low hurdles, Conrad beat out Greenford's talented junior hurdler, Dave Tyo. Tyo, one of the better hurdlers in the area, had gotten Greenford off to an early lead yesterday by winning the first event, the high hurdles. His time was 17.5.

Tyo's performance for Greenford was overshadowed by teammate Phil Johnson who accounted for 13 of the Bobcats' 33 points.

Johnson copped the 440-yard dash in 59 flat and the 220 in 25.1. He finished second to Conrad in the century dash.

With the exception of Johnson's double victory and the win in the high hurdles by Tyo, Leetonia thinclads dominated the remaining 10 events.

THE BEARS swept both relay events. Rick Smith, Mike Burgess and Capt. Eric Painter teamed up with Conrad to win the half mile relay. The winning mile relay team was composed of Burgess, Bob Snyder, Mel Van Fossen and Al Fish. Their time was 4:05.

In addition to running on both winning relay teams, Burgess tied teammate Painter for first in the high jump at 5-4. Fish became a double victor for Leetonia by adding a first in the mile run to his winning contribution in the mile relay. Fish's winning time in the mile was a rather slow 5:14.

OTHER FIRST place winners for Leetonia were Tom Wright

Power? The Chicago White Sox are loaded with it. That's right—the Chicago White Sox.

Latman Slated To Pitch

Indians' Idle 3 Days, Play Yanks Saturday

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians, still waiting to get back in action in the American League, played a six-inning intrasquad game at Cleveland Stadium Thursday.

Gary Bell pitched three hitless innings. Jim Perry then hurled two scoreless frames, but was tagged for three runs in the following inning. Frank Funk also hurled.

The Indians, idle since Tuesday night, play the Yanks in New York Saturday and have a double-header at Yankee Stadium Sunday. Barry Latman has been picked to pitch the first game in New York, where the Indians have lost 18 straight.

Dick Donovan (2-0), the Indians' shutout ace, and Sam McDowell will pitch in the Sunday twinbill. Cleveland received good news from the U.S. Army Thursday when it was announced in Washington that pitchers Jim (Mudcat) Grant and Wynn Hawkins may return to the Indians by May 1.

The Army said professional baseball players called to duty may be mustered out by the first of the month. The Pentagon has a policy of allowing men with seasonal employment—baseball is in that category—to be discharged 90 days before the end of their military tours.

Salem firsts came in the 120 high hurdles, the mile run, the 180 low hurdles, the 880-yard run, the shot put and the pole vault.

The local team's previous victory was over Poland in a dual meet Monday 63½ to 27½.

Mazeroski Blasts Third Homer

Unbeaten Bucs Rap Phils 6-3 for 8th

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

The communications industry wasn't exactly jolted when the Pittsburgh Pirates announced on January 16 that no member of the club could have his own radio or TV show, but the edict might have been just the slap on the wrist needed to revitalize the defuncted champs.

For those same Pirates who won the National League crown in 1960, then fell to sixth last year when they started out as the toast of the town, have reeled off eight consecutive victories—the latest a 6-3 win over Philadelphia Thursday night.

United Little League Elects New Officers

Election of officers was held at the first meeting of the year of the United Little League officers and team representatives Tuesday evening at the home of Albert Loudon in Hanoverton.

Officers elected for the coming year were: Ralph Cox, president; Harry Drake, vice president; Boyd S. Burd, secretary-treasurer, and Loudon, retained as commissioner.

It was decided at the meeting that the league would be made up of six teams—East Rochester, New Alexander, Winona, Franklin Township, Kensington and Hanoverton.

The group also decided that league play would consist of three rounds this year instead of four as in previous seasons. The games will be played on Tuesday and Friday evenings.

The league officers also agreed that no team manager would be under the age of 21 in both the Pony League and the Little League this year.

This year's All-Star game will be played on the Hanoverton field and two teams will be entered in tournament play instead of one as in past seasons.

Insurance for Little League players and for one team in the Pony League will be received and adjustments made at the group's next meeting May 15. "Tag Day" will be Saturday, May 12.

And three of the players who had shows last season—Dick Groat, Don Hoak and pitcher Bob Friend—are largely responsible for the Pirates' showing. Friend has won two, Groat is hitting .394 and Hoak .321.

St. Louis' Cardinals also remained undefeated, winning No. 6 with a 9-4 thumping of New York's winless Mets.

Houston blanked Chicago's Cubs 6-0 behind Dean Stone's five-hitter, the Los Angeles Dodgers edged Cincinnati 4-3 and San Francisco defeated Milwaukee 7-6 in other games.

Bill Mazeroski's third homer, off Phils' starter Art Mahaffey (2-1), sent the Pirates into a 5-1 lead they held the rest of the way. Al McBean (1-0) started for Pittsburgh but had to give way to reliever Jack Lamabe after five innings due to a sore elbow.

Curt Flood stroked four hits and Stan Musial drove in three runs with a pair of singles as the Cards sent the Mets spinning to defeat No. 7 Ray Washburn (1-0) won it, with Al Jackson (0-2) the loser.

Stone allowed the Cubs five this time. Al Spangler's bases-loaded single off Don Cardwell (0-3) in the second inning gave Stone the only run he needed.

Home runs by Tommy Davis and Duke Snider gave the Dodgers and southpaw Sandy Koufax (2-1) the victory over the Reds. Moe Drabowsky (0-2) lost it.

The Giants struck for five runs in the fifth on a homer by Jim Davenport, Harvey Kuenn's single, three walks by Lew Burdette (0-2), a wild pitch and Jose Pagan's two-run single before Felipe Alou and Ed Bailey drove in the deciding runs in the seventh.

Knudson Leads In Houston Open

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—"I was putting like gangbusters, wasn't I?" grinned young George Knudson after he took the early lead in the $50,000 Houston Classic golf tournament.

Knudson, of Toronto, shot a four-under par 66 on the rugged Memorial Park Municipal Course for his 18-hole lead Thursday. Jacky Cupit of Longview, Tex., and Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., were right behind him at 67.

Hebert, who plays golf out of Miami, Fla., is the defending champion.

"I bought a new putter in Mobile in November, and I've been going good ever since," Knudson said. "I've won three times since then and finished second once."

NOTICE TO MY THRIFTY CUSTOMERS. Be very careful when you go through Washingtonville. Coming from Salem slow down to 35 M.P.H. Be sure not to go across the R.R. Crossing when the flashers are on, even if the train is stopping or shifting. That innocent looking grey Dodge is around even if you don't see it. Also come to a complete stop at the little red jewel going toward Leetonia. That was put up for school kids, but I'm told you could get picked up almost any hour of the day or night. You get more for your money at The Country Store.

Jim Springer Of Lisbon On Champ OSU Judo Team

Jim Springer of RD 1, Lisbon, was a member of the Ohio State University Judo team that won the Eastern Collegiate Judo Championship in New York City last Sunday.

The three-man OSU team gained the championship by beating a higher ranking team from the U.S. Military Academy of West Point.

Twenty-one colleges participated in the meet.

In individual competition, Springer took second place in the brown belt competition. A teammate, Vic Libbe, took first place.

Judo at Ohio State is not a varsity sport but operates as a University recognized club. Springer is the president of the 75 man organization.

Springer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Springer, is a senior at Ohio State, majoring in psychology. He graduated from Lisbon High School in 1956.

By way of its victory, OSU has been invited to the national championships at Colorado Springs, Colo., May 12.

U.S. Government Sues Akron Bank

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A charge of embezzling $1,039 from the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation where he was an auditor led to the arrest Thursday of Herbert P. Brinker, 28, of Akron. Brinker was released under $4,000 bond pending a hearing April 27.

Tokyo twice has been reduced to rubble during the 20th century, first by the 1923 earthquake and later by Allied bombers of World War II.

CITES NARCOTICS LAW

CINCINNATI (AP) — In the opinion of a candidate for the Democratic nomination as state attorney general, Ohio's narcotics laws should be changed so violators will find it harder to get on probation.

Leroy G. Schell of Steubenville told a Democratic luncheon Thursday Ohio was considered a sanctuary for dope peddlers before the legislature passed tougher laws against narcotics offenders. He said these laws should be rigidly enforced.

TAKE COURT ACTION

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — The Sandusky County Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Commission has resorted to court action to obtain relief funds directly from county commissioners.

For several years, the commissioners have distributed veterans relief funds through regular welfare channels, providing the Soldiers' and Sailors' Commission only administrative funds. The Soldiers' and Sailors' Commission claims it needs $836,961 to pay relief claims the rest of the year.

TWO FORFEIT BONDS

LISBON — Two motorists forfeited bonds totaling $30 Thursday in County Judge James L. MacDonald's court when they failed to appear for hearings on charges of speeding.

Richard L. Gettig, 40, of Washington, Pa., and Dewey C. Hockersmith, 64, of Fairmont, W. Va.
